SYNOPSIS.

Agatha Redmond, opera singer, starting for an auto drive in New York, ûnds a stranger sent as her chauffeur. Later she is accousted by a stranger who climbinto the auto and chieroforms her. James Hambleton of Lynn, Mass., witnesses the abduction of Agatha Redmond. Hambleton sees Agatha forcibly taken aboard a yacht. He secures a tug and when near the yacht drops overboard. Aleck Van Camp, riend of Hambleton, had an appointment with him. Not meeting Hambleton, he makes a call upon friends, Madame and Miss Melanie Reynier. He proposes to the latter and is refused. The three arrange a coast trip on Van Camp's yacht, the Sea Gull. Hambleton wakes up on board the Jeanne D'Asc, the yacht on which is Agatha Redmond. He meets a man who introduces himself as Monsieur Chatelard, who is Agatha's abductor. They fight, but are interrupted by the sinking of the vessel. Jimmy and Agatha seem for hours and finally reach shore in a thoroughly exhausted condition. Recovering elightly, the pair find Hand, the chauffeur who assisted in Agatha's abduction. He agree to help them. Jim is delirious and on the verge of death, Hand goes for help. He returns with Dr. Thayer, who revives Jim, and the party is conveyed to Charlesport, where Agatha's apport and get tidings of the wreck of the Jenne D'Arc. Aleck finds Jim on the verge of death and Agatha in despair. Dr. Thayer declares his sister, Mrs. Stodard, is the only one who can save Jim. She is a woman of strong religious convictions, and dislikes Agatha on account of her profession. She refuses to nurse Jim. Agatha pleads with her and she consents to take the case. Van Camp hears Agatha's story and gets on the rack of Chatelard. Hambleton is finally out of danger. Chamberlain, friend of Van Camp, goes after Chatelard. Agatha meets Melaine Reynler and both are surprised at their remarkable resemblance. Chamberlain by a ruse induces Chatelard to go to Agatha's house. Melaine recognizes Chatelard as the spy of her persecutor, on whose account she left home. It was Melaine Chatelard he t

As he waited for her answer, Agatha suddenly came to herself. Her trembling ceased; she looked about upon them all with her truthful eyes; looked upon Hand standing unconcernedly in the doorway, upon Chatelard in the corner gleaming like an oily devil. "No-he had nothing to do with it."

Chatelard's laugh beat back her words like a bludgeon. "Liars, all liars!" he cried. "I might have known!"

But Chamberlain was impatient of all this. "And now, Monsieur Kidnaper, you can walk off with this gentleman here. And you can't go one minute too soon. The penitentiary's the place for you.'

Chatelard turned on him with anoth er laugh. "You need not feel obliged to hold on to me, Mister Land Agent. I know when I'm beaten-which you Englishmen never do. Got another of those pears you offered me this morning?"

Before Chamberlain could make re ply, or before the sheriff and his prisoner could get to the door, there was the chug of an automobile. A second later urgent and loud voices penetrated the room, first from the steps. hen from the hall. hearty voice of a man, the other was Lizzie's.

"Can't see her! Tell me I can't see her after I've run a hundred miles a day into the jungle on purpose to see her! The idea! Where is she? In here?" And in stalked Mr. Straker. with cap, linen duster, and high gaitered boots. He was pulling off his goggles. "Well, what's this? A famlly party? Where's Miss Redmond? "Mr. Straker-" cried Agatha.

"That's me! Oh there you are Why don't you open up and get some light? I can't see a thing." Wait a minute, Mr. Straker-

Agatha was saying, when suddenly the attention of everybody in the room was drawn outside.

When Chamberlain had told Chate lard that his horse was loose in the yard, it happened to be the truth; now, excited by fear of the strange machine flying bridlerein, was snorting and prancing on his way to the vegetable garden. It was almost beyond masculine power to resist the impulse of pur-Aleck and Chamberlain sprang through the window, the sheriff went open the lever, loosened the brake, speed.

"Hey, there," quickly called the sher-"He's got away!"

But Mr. Hand had already thought what was best to be done. "Come on, here's another machine We'll chase him!" he cried, as he went for the white motor-car, standing farther back under the trees. It had to be cranked, which required some seconds, but presently they were off-Hand and the sheriff, in hot pursuit after Straker's car.

Chamberlain and Aleck triumphantly leading the horse, came back in time to see the settling cloud of dust. "Mr. Chamberlain-Mr. Van Camp!" cried Agatha. "They've gone! They've gone! They've got away!" "Who's got away?" demanded Chamberlain.

"All of them!" groaned Agatha, as she sank down on the piazza steps. "Jimminy Christmas!" ejaculated Mr. Straker. "This beats any tentwenty-thirty I ever saw., Regular Dick Deadwood game! And he's run off with my new racer!"

"What!" yelled Chamberlain. "Did that bloomin' sheriff let that bloomin' rascal get away?" "He isn't anybody I'd care to keep!"

chuckled Straker. "But you know the new racer's worth something." "Did Chatelard go off in that machine?" again inquired Chamberlain slowly and distinctly of the two wom-

"Precisely," said Melanie while Aga tha's bowed head nodded.

"By Jove, that sheriff's a duffer! Here, Van, give me the horse." And with the words Chamberlain grabbed Little Simon's best roadster, mounted him bareback, and turned his head up the road. "I'll catch him yet!" he yelled back, But he didn't. Three miles farther along he came upon the wreck. The racer was lying on its side in a ditch which recent rains had converted into a substantial volume of mire and The white machine was drawn costly up under a spreading hemlock farther on, but Mr. Hand and the sheriff were nowhere in sight. As Chamberlain stopped to gaze on the overturned car, he heard the crashing of underbrush in the woods near by. The steps came nearer. It was evident the chase was up; they were off the scent and obliged to re-

"Humph!" grunted Chamberlain, and for once the clear springs of his disposition were made turbid with satire. "We're all a nack of bloomin' assesthat's what we are. What in hell's the matter with us?" While he was tying the horse to a tree, Hand appeared, silent, with an unfathomable disgust written on his countenance. As usual, he who was the least to blame came in for the hottest of the censure; and yet, there was a sort of fellowship indicated by Chamberlain's extraordinary arraignment of them both. He was scarcely known ever to have been profane, but at this moment he searched for wicked words and interspersed his spech with them recklessly, if not with skill. It is the duty of the historian to expur-"I don't know just how you happen to be in this game," pronounced Chamberlain hotly, "but all I've got to say is you're an ass-an infernal ass." Hand, rolling up his sleeves, remained silent.

"I suppose if you'd had a perfectly good million-dollar bank note, you'd have let it blow away-piff! right out of your hands!" he fumed. "Or the title deed of Mount Olympus-er a ticket to a front seat in the New Jeru- herself. salem. That's all it amounts to. Catch an eel, only to let him slip through your fingers-eh, you!" Mr. Hand made no answer. Instead placed a shoulder under the racing car. Chamberlain's instinct for doing that had just arrived, the herse, with his share of work caused him to roll up his trousers and wade in shoulder was lecturing on the feebleness of man's wits. "Good horse running loose into harb. wire fences had to be caught, but it as far as the lawn after them, and in didn't need a squadron of men and a er the breach for a time. that instant Chatelard slipped like an forty-acre lot to do it in. Might have eel through the open door and out to known he'd give us the slip if he the gate to Straker's machine, still could-biggest rascal in Europe!" And chugging. The sheriff saw him as he so on. Chamberlain, usually rather a silent man, blew himself empty for "Hey, there!" he shouted, and made once, conscious all the time that he, a lively run for the gate. But before himself, was quite as much to blame he reached it, Chatelard had jerked as Hand could possibly have been And Hand knew that he knew, and was passing the church at half kept his counsel. Hand ought to be prime minister by this time.

When the racing car was righted, he went swiftly and skilfully to work investigating the damage and putting Mr. Straker that perhaps the engineer at the quarry—a native who had "been to Boston" and qualified as ble. Chamberlain presently became impressed with his mechanical dexter-

Hand continued silent, and left it to his companion to put on the finishing verbal touches.

"Tow her home and fill her up and him if he'll make the thing right." she'll be all right, eh?" said Chamber lain, but Hand kept on tinkering. The sudden neighing and plunging of Little Simon's poor tormented horse gave warning of the sheriff, crashing yellow. Had Little Simon "liked," he could probably have mended the car

He was voluble with excuses. The of his flight. He might be in the woods, or he might have run to the railroad track and caught the freight be in the next township, or he might

"Oh, go to thunder!" said Chamber

CHAPTER XXI.

Jimmy Redivius. If the occupants of the old red house felt over-much inclined to draw a long breath and rest on their oars after Agatha's manager was able to supply a powerful antidote. He was restlessness incarnate.

He was combining a belated summer holiday with what he considered to be good business, "seeing" not only his prima donna secluded at Ilion, but oth-Portland to Halifax. When he heard that the man who ran off with his racing car was also responsible for the den of his entertainment. Presently mysterious departure of Miss Red- he made up his mind that it was time mond, his excitement was great.

for him to see Jimmy. His nose, "You mean to say that you were trained for scenting news, led him picked up and drugged in broad daylight in New York?" he demanded of Agatha.

"Practically that." "And you escaped?"

"The yacht foundered."

"And that scamp walked right into your hands and you let him go?" Agatha forced a rueful smile. "I confess I'm not much used to catching criminals."

Mr. Straker paused, lacking words to express his outraged spirit.

"I don't mean you, of course. This whole outfit here-what are they doing? Think they're put on in a walking part, eh? Don't they know enough to go in out of the rain?" Getting no reply to his fuming, he came down from his high horse, curiosity impelling. "What'd he kidnap you for-ransom?

"No. It seems that he mistook m for Miss Reynler-the lady out there on the lawn talking with Mr. Van Camp.

Mr. Straker bent his intent out of the window.

"I don't see any resemblance at all." His crusty manner implied that Agatha, or somebody, was to blame for all the coil of trouble, and should be made to pay for it.

"Even I was puzzled," smiled Agatha. "I thought she was some one I knew.

"Nonsense!" growled Mr. Straker. Anybody with two eyes could see the difference. She's older, and heavier. What did the scoundrel want with

"I don't know. She's a princess or Hand, mething."

"Advertising!" he shouted joyfully. up-all this time lost. Princess who? like her, after all. I see it all nowidentity! Which is the princess?

It'll draw crowds-thousands." Agatha escaped, leaving Mr. Straker the interested Sallie. to collect from others the details of his advertising story, which he did with surprising speed and accuracy. By the next morning he had pumped Camp, and had extracted the promise of an interview from Miss Reynier

The only really unsatisfactory subject of investigation was Mr. Hand. whom Straker watched for a day or two with growing suspicion. Straker he waded into the ditch-stream and had sputtered, good-naturally enough, over the "accident" to his racing-car. and had taken it for granted, in rather a high-handed manner, that Mr. Hand was to make repairs. His manner toto shoulder with Hand, even while he ward the chauffeur was not pleasant, being a combination of the patron and the bully. It was exactly the sort of manner to precipitate civil war. though diplomacy might serve to cov-

But the racing-car, ignominiously towed home by Miss Reynier's white machine, stood undisturbed in one cf the open carriage sheds by the church Eluded by Hand for the space of twenty-four hours, and finding that the injury to the car was beyond his own mechanical skill to repair. Mr. Straker sent peremptory word' to Charlesport and to the Hillside for the services of a mechanician, without satisfaction. Little Simon thought the matter was beyond him, but informed get him to come and be quick about it," adjured Mr. Straker. "And tell him for me that there's long-yellow for chauffeur-would come and look at and qualified

"He'll charge you two dollars an hour, including time on the road," olemnly announced Little Simon, unimpressed by any mention of the longcould probably have mended the car himself, but Mr. Straker's manner, so effective on Broadway, was not to the fugitive had escaped, leaving no traces taste of these country people. He thought of them in their poverty as "peasants," but without the kindliness of the born gentleman. What Aleck that had just slowly passed. He might | Van Camp could have got for love, Mr. Straker could not buy; and he was at last obliged to appeal to Hand through Agatha's agency. "I'll look at it again." Hand replied shortly, when Agatha addressed him on the subject.

The car being temporarily out ommission, it was necessary for Mr. Straker to adopt some other means of making himself and everybody about him extremely busy. He took a fancy their anxiety and recent excitement, for yachting, and got himself diligently instructed in an art which, of all arts, must be absorbed with the mother's milk, taken with the three R's and followed with enthusiastic devotion. In Mr. Straker every qualification for seamanship was lacking save enthusiasm, but as he himself er important people all the way from never discovered this fact, his amour propre did not suffer, and his companions were partly relieved of the bur> inevitably to the chief actor in the unusual drama which had indirectly involved his own fortunes, and he saw no reason why he should not follow it at once. "You'd better wait a while," cautioned Doctor Thayer. "That young man pumped his heart dry as a seed-pod, and got some fever germs on top of that. He isn't fit to stand the third degree just yet." "I'm not going to give him any third degree, not a bit of it. 'Hero! Saved a Princess!' and all that. That's what's coming to him as soon as the newspapers get hold of it. But I want Jimmy did buck up, though Mr. Straker's message still remains to be delivered. He gathered his forces and exhibited such recuperative abiltties as to astonish the old red house and all Ilion. Doctor Thayer and each of his nurses in turn unconsciously assumed credit for the good his fever-sickness he took no trouble work, and Saille Kingsbury took a to conceal this other malady. As soon good share of pride in his satisfactory recovery.

"Two aigs regular," she would say, with all a housekeeper's glory in her guests' enjoyment of food.

There was enough credit to go round, indeed, and Jimmy presently ecame the animated and interesting center of the family. He might have been a new baby and his bedroom the sacred nursery. He was being spoiled every hour of the day.

"Did he have a good night?" tha would anxiously inquire of Mr.

"Can't tell which is night; he Mr. Straker jumped, "She is!" he sleeps all the time," would be the up in an easy chair by a window over tenor of Mr. Hand's reply. Or Sallie looking the towering elm tree and the "It is recognized," says Mr. McAnwould ask, as if her fate depended on white church. "Did he eat that nice piece er chicken, Aunt Susan?" And "Jimminy Christmas! We'll make it Mrs. Stoddard would say, "Eat it! It disappeared so quick I thought he'd Where from? I guess you do look choke. Wanted three more just like it, but I told him that invalids were head-lines! 'Strange confusion of like puppy-dogs-could only have one

"Well, how'd he take that?" asked

"He said if I thought he was an invalld any longer I had another guess coming. Says he'll be up and into his clothes by tomorrow, and is going to Sallie, Doctor Thayer and Aleck Van take care of me. Says I'm pale and need a high-ball, whatever that is." "Never heard of it," said Sallie.

"He's a good young man, if he did get pitched overboard," went on Mrs. Stoddard, "But he doesn't need me any more, and I guess I'll be going

"I don't know but what the rest o us need you," complained Sallie. "It's more of a Sunday school picnic here than you'd think, what with a New York press agent and a princess, to say nothing of that Mr. Hand." "He certainly knows how to manage sick man," said Susan. Mrs. Stoddard made her way to Agatha in the cool chamber at the head of the stairs. Agatha, in a dressingsack, with her hair down, called her in and sent Lizzle away. "You're not going, are you, Stoddard?" She took Susan's two hands and held them lovingly against her cheek, "It won't seem right here, without you."

"You've done your duty, Agatha, 've done mine, as I saw it. I'm not needed here any more, but I'll send Angle over to help Sallie with work, after I get the crab-apples pickled.

the Women Will Take to the Idea With Avidity.

Agatha held Mrs. Stoddard's bands closely. "Ab, you have been good te

"There is none good but one," quoted Mrs. Stoddard; neverthele her eyes were moist with feeling You'll stay on in the old red house? "I don't know; probably not for long. But I almost wish I could." "I've learned a sight by you, Agatha. I want you to know that," said

Susan, struggling with her reticence and her impulse toward confess "Oh, don't say that to me, Mrs Stoddard. I can only remember how good you've been to us all." But Susan would not be denied. "I thought you were proud and vain and -and worldly, Agatha. And I treated you harsh, I know." "No, no. Whatever you thought, it's all past now, and you are my friend You'll help me to take care of this dear old place-yes?" "The Lord will establish the work of your hands, my child!" She suddenly turned with one of her practical ideas, "I wouldn't let that new city man in to see Mr. Hambleton just yet, if I were you." "Is Mr. Straker trying to get in te see Mr. Hambleton?" "Knocked at the door twice morning, and I told him be couldn't 'Why not?' said he. 'Danger of fever,' said I. Then Mr. Hamble ton asked me who was there, and I said, 'I don't exactly know, but it's either Miss Redmond's maid's beau or a press agent,' and then Mr. Hambleton called out, as quick and strong as anybody, 'Go 'way! I think I've got smallpox.' And he went off. quicker'n a wink, and hasn't been

"I guess he'll get over his smallpox scare, but Mr. Hambleton don't want to see him, not yet. He wants to see "I'm going in to see him soon, anyway," said Agatha. But still she waited a little before going in for her morning visit with James. It meant so much to her! It wasn't to be taken lightly and casually, but with a little pomp and ceremony. Each day since the night of the crisis she had paid her morning call, and each day she had seen new lights in Jimmy's eyes. In vain had she been matter-of-fact and practical. treating him as an invalid vagaries should be indulged even though they were of no importance. He would not accept her on those to know how he did it, and what he terms. Back of his weakness had been a strength, more and more perceptible each day, touching her with the sweetest flattery woman ever receives. It was the strength of a lover's spirit, looking out at her from his eyes and speaking to her in every inflection of his voice. Moreover, while as he could speak distinctly he proclaimed his spiritual madness, though > Stoddard, quite understood. "I'm not sick; don't be an idiot, Hand. And give me a shave, for Heaven's sake. Anybody can get knocked on the head-that's all the freight station which was the usurper had to give in quickly. Jimmy's frequented it has moved far uptown resilience passed all expectations. He should still face it. Publicity is doing came up like a rubber ball; and now, its part. For the rest the present getting shaved and clothed in one of lowing statment from George Mc nobody but Agatha, and possibly Mrs.

"Er-Andy-couldn't you some kind of a tie? This soft shirt ing should be left undone to prevent business doesn't look very fit, does the demolition of St. John's chapel. it, without a tle?" coaxed Jim. "If you ask me, I say you look fine."

Jim sternly, looking at Hand's im- street. When the map has been fixed, maculate linen.

to bed in the morning," confessed Hand.

Jimmy. bed at night, like other folks, now. And then what'll you do?" "I guess Miss Sallie'll have to sit when a slipper struck him in the back.

"Good shot! What d'you want nowan opera hat?" he inquired derisively. "Andy!" ejaculated Jim, dismay set-"I've just tling on his features. thought! Do you s'pose I'm paying hotel bills all this time at The Larue?

Hand grinned unsympathetically. "If you engaged a room, sir, and didn't give it up, I believe it's the custom-"That'll do for now, Handy Andy, if you can't get up any better answer than that. Lord, what's that!" Jim suddenly exclaimed, as if he hadn't been, waiting, all ears, for that very step in the passage. "I guess likely that'll be Miss Redmond," replied the respectful Hand. And so it was. Agatha, fresh as the morning, stood in the doorway for a contemplative moment, before coming forward to take Jim's outstretched hand. (TO BE CONTINUED.) who boasts of his descent praises the deeds of another.—Seneca.

Historic Church Edifice in N. Y. to Be Conserved.

Old Chapel of Trinity Parish is One of the Two Structures of Their Kind Standing on Manhattan Island a Century Ago.

New York .- Blocking the road of progress-even where it is the road of temporary progress only-is an ofense of which growing cities are rude ly impatient. They are apt ruthlessly to destroy for some immediate com-mercial end landmarks which cannot be restored when, after a few years, the road of progress must be shifted again. New York naturally is particularly apt to be hasty in such matters. Perhaps, in view of the comparative scarcity of historical architecture worthy of preservation, it has more excuse than some older cities for an unsentimental attitude. All the more street has had many narrow escapes already, and Trinity Corporation can hardly claim the credit for its survival into its one hundred and fourth year. Rather the vigilance of the newspapers has saved it. It is the newspapers again which have widely advertised those recent plans for street improvements to meet new conditions in the region of west side warehouses which contemplated once more the sacrifice of St. John's rather than, for instance, any part of the ugly pile of brick across the way-the matter with me. Give me some of the park which once faced the clothes and you'll see." Even Hard chapel, and though the fashion that on a fine September morning, he was status of affairs is indicated in the foleny, "by all who want to preserve the "Where'd you get all your good land which is to be taken in connecclothes, I'd like to know?" inquired tion with the widening of Varick however the board of estimate and "Miss Sallie washes 'em after I go apportionment will have the power to change the line of either the roadway or the sidewalk. I propose to ask the "Well, you'll have to go to later than the first meeting in Septemtion before that time, because any change in the plans at present would proceeding for widening Variok street and that would mean a long delay." St. John's chapel is one of the two church edifices that were standing on Manhattan island a century ago, the other being St. Paul's chapel, between way. The Trinity church, which then was known as Chapel hill at Cliff (ther Van Cliff) and Beekman streets, was the first of the Trinity chapels to come into existence. It was consecrated in 1752, but became a separate charge in 1811. The edifice was burned in 1814 and rebuilt the following year, and after 1846 rebuilt once again on the ground on which it now stands, in Adopts Municipal Flag.

Kansas City.-The city council has adopted a pennant for Kansas City, to e used on all occasions where a flag appropriate. The pennant will be of light navy blue. The shield of the city is to be in the left-hand corner. with the words "Kansas City, a good place to live," in white letters.

South Orange, N. J .- An amethyst beth Arcularius, a graduate of high school here this year, by the board offeducation for her perfect record of attendance. She was neither late nor absent for the past 12

ott was appointed chief market clerk

Unpardoned sin destroys the soul lla natural hopefulnes

Sometimes a man's friends think of him as his enemies speak of him.

nd thoughts are sometimes best in a case of love at first sight. Some people manage to make a little truth go a long way by stretching it.

Many a politician doesn't know which side of the fence he is on until he falls off.

A girl's troubles soon cease to worry When a man acquires peck of trouble it looks to him like a bushel and Men of cenuine merriment are helpful to their fellows.

FOR WEAKNESS AND LOSS OF APPE-TITE.

The Old Standard general strengthening tonic, GROVERS TABUELESS chili TONIO drives out Ma-laris and builds up the system: A true tonic and sure Appellace. For should and oblidren. 10 conta-"You should register on your party's side."

"On the cash register?" "Do I take this steamer to Boston?"

"Well. I'd let the captain do thate if I were you." Nell-My face is my fortune. Belle-Then you need never be afraid of fortune hunters. "What kind of a horse do you think would suit a fireman best?"

"I suppose a plug would." Similarity.

"My dog begging for a bone is like the argumentative orator." "How so?" "Because he paws for a reply."

"Dear me!" exclaimed the fond father, anxiously, "Whatever can be the matter with the baby?-it isn't crying!"-Puck Paper and Slate.

"My profits are largely on paper," remarked the broker. "Mine are on the slate," chimed in the foxy coal dealer, with a wink.

Mean Intimation. "What is this hard round object which has just rolled to my feet?" "I dont' know whether it's a golf ball or one of my wife's biscuits." Properly Named.

"Why does this piano manufacturer call his business an infant industry?" "Because he manufactures mostly baby grands."

Snippe After Him.

his tailor.' "Wrong. He's three suits shead."-Boston Transcript.

"I hear that Briggs is behind with Chose the Lesser Evil.

A gentleman from the north was enjoying the excitement of a bear hunt down in Mississippi. The bear was surrounded in a small cane thicket. The dogs could not get the bear out and the planter who was at the head of the hunt called to one of the ne-

"Sam, go in there and get the bear

The negro hesitated for a moment and then plunged into the cane. few moments later the negro, the hear and the dogs were rolling upon the ground outside. After the hunt was over the visitor said to the negro: "Were you not afraid to go into that thicket with that bear?" "Cap'n," replied the negro, "it was jest dis way: I neber had met dat b'ar, but I was pussonally 'quainted wid de old boss, so I jest naturally took dat b'ar,"—Montreal Herald.

How It Happened.

The Chronic Meddler-"You are extremely bald, for one of your age." The Bare-pated Party-"Yes; got this way by butting into other people's affairs.

AN OLD NURSE Persuaded Doctor to Drink Postum.

An old faithful nurse and an experenced doctor, are a pretty strong combination in favor of Postum, instead of tea and coffee. The doctor said: "I began to drink Postum five years ago on the advice of an old nurse. "During an unusually busy winter, between coffee, tea and overwork, I became a victim of insomnia. In a month' after beginning Postum, in place of tes and coffee, I could eat anything and sleep as soundly as a baby. "In three months I had gained twenty pounds in weight. I now use Postum altogether instead of tea and coffee; even at bedtime with a soda cracker or some other tasty biscuit.

"Having a little tendency to Diabetes, I used a small quantity of saccharine instead of sugar, to sweeten with. I may add that today tea or coffee are never present in our house and very many patients, on my advice, have adopted Postum as their regular bev-

"In conclusion I can assure anyone that, as a refreshing, nourishing and nerve-strengthening beverage, there is nothing equal to Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville." Postum comes in two forms.

Regular (must be boiled). Instant Postum doesn't require bollng but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a meaping spoonful and temper it with a arge supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the mount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future. There's a Reason" for Postum

Humor of Various Nations

Different Races Have Special Ideas of Jokes Which Seem to Appeal to Them Alone. A man who has nothing else to do. anyhow, has taken unto himself the task of gathering from the comic papers of six nations the leading topics ch appear to be the favorite homes of humor in each country. Here is a brief summary of the re-

The Germans' pet ticklers are: A sor who forgets his umbrella; college student who drinks beer and ches" a friend for a loan; the "touches" a friend for a loan; the misses who worship army officers, a husband without the front door key; the cook's lover, usually a soldier, hidden in the kitchen; mother-in-law.

Maglishmen prefer: Kisses (in all descriptions); boys who are afraid of frotball; ditto, cricket; ditto.

Rugby; Americans who talk through the nose; mothers-in-law. French people giggie on jokes or soldiers and nurses; wives whohusbands who-; boys who-; girls who-; the German tourist in Paris; government-made matches; the mode latest mode; the very latest mode;

Sarah Bernhardt's age; mothers-in-Americans laugh at almost anything. but their favorita topics are: The common people squashed by a trust; a stolid Englishman; an Italian who trum. "He looks just about like the eats spaghetti; a silk hat (occasionally a nose) smashed in a fisticuffs; a bottle of whisky labeled "lemonade;"

The Italians' favorites are: A zlut-jokes are always on corridas, toros y espadas; when they change they are on toros, corridas y espadas, or espadas, coridas y toros; once in a while mothers-in-law get a shot, too.

Rare Attraction for a Sideshow "I next have the pleasure, lay-dees show lecturer in orotund tones, indicabefore the last; the last mode; the ting a pale, wan, spectacled person on platform, "of calling your kind atcuriosities on exhibition. Ha-"

"Huh!" hypercritically ejaculated

Tobe Sags, who had nesed into the forefront of the crowd around the ros-

Finally, the Spaniards' predilected rest of us." "Very true!" replied the orator But, despite that fact, he is, so far Italian hurdy-gurdy; mothers-in- as we have any knowledge, the only specimen of his kind in existence—a country editor who worked and fought ton country priest; Roman urchins; a and labored for his party, with heart Neapolitan eabby; a tailor's bill; a and soul and might and main, merely cigar that does not "draw;" the colobecause he thought it was right and

Costumes of Snake Skins London Dress Expert Predicts That

Look out for the very latest and gen-tle-men," announced the side dress materials—snake skins—which cuffs to motor coats, and make elaba London costumer predicts for this orate waistcoats, which will not wrinfall. He says: "The advantages of kle and which will disguise rotundity. anake skins for gowns are more manitention to one of the most remarkable fold than would appear at the first glarice. Marvels can be achieved by the python's skin in the hands of a clever c signer, for the skin never pulls or gives. It is both waterproof and pliable, and it can by skilful manipulation of its wonderful scale marking bring into prominence a pret-ty point or hide a defect. By using the python's skin for footgear a foot can be made smaller, or it can be giv-en breadth or tapered to a point. Then why should not an entire figure many. But now even France beginning ones by the magic aid of a python's skin? Not only will women benefit by this idea, but the python's skip should make men's golf shoes impervious to weather, furnish lapels and -Dundee Advertiser.

France Becoming Modest. Strange as it may seem, France has joined the forces which are at war against the undraped statue. The objection of American prudes to a beautiful Bacchante was not the first exlibition of Boston's sentiment on that artistic circles than the order which ton country priest; Roman urchins; a and labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not an entire neuron labored for his party, with heart. Then why should not heart. Then why reason therefore exists for protecting whatever exists that is worthy. And the case of St. John's chapel of Trinity parish is a notable case in point. The beautiful old building in Varick

Portico and Spire of St. John's.

The matter is in abevance now, pending the acquisition by the city of the "Oh, she does, does she!" jeered board to take action upon this not ber. It is impracticable to obtain ac up nights," modestly suggested Hand, involve the reopening of the entire > Fulton and Vesey streets on Broadstood in Broadway opposite Wall street, was not the present Trinity church, which is the third on the same site, the first, consecrated in 1698, having been destroyed in the great fire of 1776, and a subsequent structure, erected after the Revolution, pulled down to make way for the present one. St. George's, on what Rutherfurd place.

Promptness Is Rewarded.

Woman Appointed Market Clerk Philadelphia -- Miss Achsah Lippin nere at a salary of $1,000 a year. She neaded the civil service eligibility list with a higher average than three mer competitiors. She will study marke conditions in other cities.